Coal, oil, and natural gas supply modern civilization with most of its power. However, not only are supplies of these fuels (1) _____, but they are a major source of pollution. If the energy demands of the future are to be met without seriously harming the environment, existing alternative energy sources must be improved or further explored and developed. These include nuclear, water, solar, wind, and geothermal power, as well as energy from new, nonpolluting types of fuels. Each of these (2) _____, however, has advantages and disadvantages.

Nuclear power plants efficiently (3) _____ large amounts of electricity without polluting the atmosphere; however, they are costly to build and maintain, and they pose the daunting problem of what to do with nuclear wastes. Hydroelectric power is inexpensive and (4) _____ safe, but impractical for communities located far from moving water. Harnessing energy from tides and waves has similar drawbacks. Solar (5) _____ holds great promise for the future but methods of collecting and – concentrating sunlight are as yet inefficient, as are methods of harnessing wind power.

III: Read the following article about ice-skating. Choose the most suitable heading from the list A-I for each part (1-8) of the article. Write your answers in the space in the numbered boxes below. There is one extra heading that is not to be used. (8 points)

A. Prepare yourself	F. The right attitude
B. The benefits of the sport	G. Moving off
C. When things go wrong	H. Holding your body correctly
D. Different skating techniques	I. How it all started
E. A change in approach

1.....

Ice skating has a history of thousands of years. Archaeologists have discovered skates made from animal bone. It seems that bone skates were used until the introduction of iron into Scandinavia about the year 200 AD. Among the Scandinavian upper classes, skating was seen as an essential skill.

2. ....

In the early twentieth century, skating was stylish and reserved, but at the 1924 Winter Olympics, 11-year-old Sonja Hinnies introduced a more athletics attitude which inspired a new wave of popularity. Nowadays art and athletics are combined and modern skating is both graceful and physically demanding.

3. ....

For beginners, balance and control are all important and speed can only increase with proficiency. The position of your body plays a great part in balance. Legs slightly bowed and the knees bent keep the body weight centered; in effect the body leans slightly forward in this position. For skating, probably more than any other sport or recreation, relaxation is vital.

4. ....

For the skating position, the heels should almost be touching and the feet should be turned out wards. While pushing toward with a back foot, you make a very small movement with the other foot. Fairly easy, isn't it? If you can keep this up for a while, you can then slowly increase the length of your movements as you gain experience.

5. ....

Knowing how to fall must be learnt among the skater's first skills. Even the best of the professionals fall. In order to fall without injury, you should be as relaxed as possible. In this way the sock of hitting the ice is lessened. To get up, use your hands to get into a kneeling position, then stand.

6. ....

Once you have learnt to move on the ice with confidence, there are various styles to be practised- figure skating, free styles, distance, speed, skating pairs, and so on- but the basics of them all, and by far the best approach, is first to learn figures can soon be learned figure skating and then elementary freestyle. With proper guidance available at most of the ice rinks, the basic figures can soon be learnt and the turns, jumps, and spins or elementary free style will so follow.

7. ....

If you look at any good professional skater, you will see how relaxed they are and how easily they move. To achieve this, an exercise program should be regularly practised. It can be dangerous to skate with a stiff body and warm up exercises should at least include those for the legs, back and shoulders, with special emphasis on the ankles and the knees. After a long or intense session, the same exercises should be used afterwards to avoid stiffness.

8. ....

Skating improves balance, co-ordination, relaxation and movement. It improves heart and lung activity and generally strengthens the body. Combined with swimming or jogging, it provides a great program for all-round health and fitness.

ANSWERS:

1. _____	2. _____	3. _____	4. _____
5. _____	6. _____	7. _____	8. _____

IV: Read the following passage and circle A, B, C or D that indicates the best answers for each of the questions below. (5 points)

Our growing need for food, goods and energy has had many harmful effects on the environment. Gases produced by cars, power stations and factories cause acid rain, which kills trees and damages buildings. By using more environmentally-friendly forms of transport, we help reduce this form of pollution.

A layer of carbon dioxide and other gases traps heat and keeps the earth at the right temperature. This is called the green-house effect. By burning fossil fuels we are producing too much carbon dioxide, which is causing temperatures to rise gradually. This global warming could lead to dramatic changes in climate. A layer of gas called ozone protects the earth from harmful ultra-violet radiation. Certain chemicals used in industry, such as CFCs have caused a hole to develop in the ozone layer. The increased levels of ultra-violet radiation damage plants and sea life, and increase the risk of skin cancer.

Most of the energy we use to heat and light building, run machines etc. is made by burning fossil fuels. This energy source will eventually get exhausted, so we need to use more alternative sources of energy such as wind and solar power that are renewable and do not pollute the air. We also avoid wasting energy but using less electricity and water and insulating our new houses.

We are destroying our forests, which produce oxygen and provide habitats – natural environments – for animals and birds. Deforestation also allows rain to wash away the soil, making land useless for growing things. We pollute water by dumping waste from factories and houses, and by accidentally spilling chemicals and oil. Chemical fertilizers damage rivers and lakes by causing a layer of tiny plants, called algal to cover the surface of water. Organic farming does not harm water supply. Burying rubbish in landfills can make chemicals leak through the ground into rivers, and it uses a lot of land. Burning rubbish adds to global warming. By sorting out rubbish for recycling we can cut down on waste.

1. The passage is mainly about _____.
  - A. Man and Nature
  - B. how we should use the existing sources of energy
  - C. environmental problems
  - D. rubbish recycling
2. Acid rain is caused by _____.
  - A. gases emitted from cars and factories
  - B. the burning of rubbish
  - C. the burying of rubbish
  - D. ultra-violet radiation
3. Skin cancer may be caused by _____.
  - A. the global warming
  - B. acid rain
  - C. air pollution
  - D. ultra-violet radiation
4. We should use more alternative sources of energy such as wind and solar power because they _____.
  - A. are cheaper
  - B. will not be used up and do not pollute the air
  - C. are easier to get
  - D. can be recycled
5. If we destroy forest _____.
  - A. animals and birds will have no place to live
  - B. rivers and lakes will be polluted
  - C. wildlife and farming will be affected
  - D. our wood supply will decrease.
